I recently upgraded from Neo4j v.2.1.7 to v.2.2.0

However, the default username/password (neo4j/neo4j) is not being recognized.

How is this resolved?

Do you need authentication? If not you could turn it off by setting

dbms.security.auth_enabled=false

in neo4j-server.properties. This is a new config line added in Neo4j 2.2. If found in a fresh installation it would look like this:

Require (or disable the requirement of) auth to access Neo4j
dbms.security.auth_enabled=true

When upgrading the line may not be present - if not it can be added in safely.

1   That's no problem. If you upgraded then it won't be - authN was added in Neo4j 2.2. Simply add it and you will be good to go. I've edited my answer slightly to be clearer. –   ceej Apr 10 at 13:54 ✎
